MUTUAL

A fatherly old major, coming back to his quarters unexpectedly with the intention of taking a nip of his private stock found his hitherto trusted orderly doing that very little thing.

"Why, Jones?" exclaimed the officer sternly. "I am astonished!"

"So am I, sir," confessed the orderly as he snatched to attention. "I thought the major was out on the drill field."

EVIDENTLY HE DID

Sam had passed through a harrowing experience. He had seen no less a thing than a ghost. While his audience listened with bulging eyes, he related the details of his awful experience.

"Ah! jes' come outer de cow pen whah Ah'd been milkin' de cows," he said, "an' Ah had a bucket o' milk in mah hand. Den Ah hears a noise by de side o' de road an' de ha't rushes out. Looks like it's a man wid his ha'd chopped plum' off, an'—"

"Lawd!" interrupted one of his auditors, "at suttin' most o' been terrible. Didn' yo' shake wid fright, Sam?"

"Ah don' know what Ah shook wid. Ah kain't say fo' suttin' Ah shook at all. But when Ah got home Ah foun' all de milk gone, an' two poun's of butter lef' in de bucket."

FOR ONCE HE WAS WRONG

"This hotel," declared the clerk proudly, "is run on the theory that the guest is always right."

"Fine," declared the man who had been there a week. "I don't owe you a cent!"

Commission Men
Do Not Realize
the War Is Over

At different times in its meetings the North Platte Valley Stock Growers association has "resolved and resolved" with reference to what the members averred were the highway methods in use by the livestock commission men at different market points in the matter of charges for their service. Walls have gone into Washington at various times, and every now and then some secretary or other tells the commission men they must be good or he will slap them on the wrist, says the Scottsbluff Star-Herald.

Some time ago Secretary Wallace, under whose department the packing industries were put by the "packer's bill," told the commission men that they would have to "cut out" their overcharging of the livestock shipper. It is rumored that the commission men agreed to the secretary's request and then went right on charging the same old high rate. It is very likely that their long association with the packing interests had begotten in their minds the idea that a millionaire packer of pork was bigger than Uncle Sam. Truth to tell they can't be blamed very much if they did.

But it now appears that Secretary Wallace, probably knowing the men with whom he was dealing, did not take them at their word, but put investigators to work who have been making a close study of the practices in vogue at Chicago, Omaha, Houston, St. Paul, Portland and other market points.

The outcome has been a report in which it is stated that the commission men apparently have very poor ideas of what is going on—not as yet being aware that the war is over. At any rate they are still extorting wartime prices from the live stock shippers. Federal agents have learned enough to convince them that multiplications are prevalent in many stock exchange centers.

The overcharges by commission merchants work both ways, according to the federal agents. They deprive the farmers of adequate profit to encourage stock raising. Second, they boost the price of meats all along the line of distribution to the consumer.

An Italian laborer was applying for naturalization papers and to test his qualifications the judge asked, "Who is president of the United States?"

"Meatball Harding,"

"Correct. And who is vice-president?"

"Sausages Harding."

"Non-no, that will hardly do," replied the kindly judge. "But I will give you another chance. What is to prevent you becoming president?"

"Ah-ah!" chorled the laborer in triumph at such an easy one. "I gotta you dere, judge. Me too busy. No gotta da time."
